In spite of all the elamorous complaints, that fortune is fickle and not to be relied us, yet it is, perhaps, the better that she is so. Were things never to change, but go on in one dull, monotonous course, what would be the state of affairs? Men who might otherwise rise from low abscurity to hold distinguished statens, would inger out their dreary days in changeless to gettilizes, the gay beauties of nature would case to call forth the admiration of men, and youthful geoms, drauping her new fledged junious, would such to rise to more. A thunder starm, were than usually destructive in its effects, passed over Newport, R. I. on Sunday week. The lightning struck in various parts of the town, doing great damage. The Mercury gives these particulars :—A house in Broad street, occupied by Mr. Robert Franklin, jr. was struck with lightning and his wife, and a child, the daughter of Mr. John Almy, were instantly killed. Mrs. Franklin was setting at the time near the fire planes, with the child inher lay, and a dog by her side, when the lightning descended the chinney, and they were all found dead in that position. The house of Mrs. P. Muniford, on the hill, was also struck and mach injured, the lightning having struck both chinnies, and forced its war down the side of the chamber and lower rooms, from whence it passed out of the window. Three houses on the point were also struck, but were not much injured. In Middletown, the lightning also struck in two places. On the farm of the late John Chaws a stack of grain was struck, and entirely consumed, and on the farm of Mr. Broken Houses sended by was a somewharm.
